THANK YOU!!! It takes many hands to make any parish event an enjoyable, successful event. I just want to say thank you to ALL of the amazing people who helped out last Sunday for our Parish Picnic. As with every year our picnic would not have come together the way it did without all the volunteers/commissions who helped on the day, from the people who setup, cooked and served the food, conducted games, the many who brought a dish to share, helped take down and cleanup. Thank You. A special thank you to the Parish Council, Worship, Christian Service, Administration and Education Commissions, Weatherman Fr. Tom, Greg Bouza for donating the ice and ice cream, Tom Premo for making the ramps and handrails, all Parish Staff, and to Ryan Cooley for equipment from Rock N Ry DJ Entertainment. We are a wonderful Parish because of You.

We hope everyone who came had a great time!

FAMILY TALK TIME Celebrating Sunday for Catholic Families, Sara McGinnis Lee
Can you remember a time when you needed to be forgiven? How did the person you hurt respond?

► Reflecting on the Word: Forgiveness can be hard, whether we are giving it or receiving it. We do not like to feel that we have done something wrong, but all of us sometimes need forgiveness. It can help to remember our failings when others are unkind. In these times, we need to rely on the deepest parts of our hearts that are connected to God. In that place we will always be able to find the strength and patience to forgive, even if it is seventy-seven times.

► Living the Word: Ask family members to try on the skin of a forgiving person today. Tell them to see if, for one day, they can forgive big and little things that happen. At the end of the day, ask them: How do you feel? Will it be easier to go to sleep at night? Did you find your day went smoother since you weren't focusing on the bad things but the goodness of God's forgiveness? What things were harder than others to forgive? Is this a practice you could keep up?

24th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Sr. Mary McGlone, Celebration

Today's Gospel takes up the theme of what to do with anger or injury. We can picture Peter looking around at the other disciples and raising an eyebrow as he asks Jesus, "How often do I have to forgive such as these?" With princely magnanimity, he proposes going to extremes. His question and semi-offer, "seven times?" is really a way of asking, "Should I forgive lots more often than seems to be reasonable?" Jesus responds with what could be made into a rhythmic playground chant: Not just seven / but seventy-seven / over and again / forever and ever / Amen!"

To help the group get the message, Jesus weaves them a tale about a great con-artist who amassed a debt so big that their language didn't have real numbers to describe it. Putting on an Oscar-worthy sad face, the debtor begged for a little time to get it together, and the master let him off the hook knowing that repayment was ridiculously improbable. Then, that wicked charlatan who should have been throwing a block party to celebrate his redemption, instead threw one of his poor companions in jail for a debt that, while miniscule in comparison to the first, was way more than the poor guy could come up with. Of course, nobody cried when they heard that the once-forgiven, never-forgiving debtor ended up getting just what he had given the other.

Our Tapestry

McGlone, Celebration

Sirach told his readers that remembering that we are all going to die can shed important light on the choices we make today. In his novel One Hundred Years of Solitude the Nobel Prize-winning author Gabriel Garcia Marquez told the story of Amaranta, a woman whose name seemed to be an indecisive combination of the words amor and amarga, Love and bitterness. Amaranta had received a vision in which she learned that she was to weave her own shroud, and when she had finished, she would die. She did her work faithfully, sometimes weaving, sometimes tearing it apart, consistently reworking it until the day it was done, and she was ready to die. Her artisan task was symbolic of the undertaking of every human life. We each weave our own stories, mending, tearing, making mistakes and introducing new textures and themes; undoing and reworking until one day the task comes to completion.

As individuals, the life we weave is in our hands. We cannot determine what will come our way, but we can decide how we will weave it into our story, how we will interpret it, whether we will let it engender love or bitterness. As communities, the world we pray for can only come about through the work of human hands that are open to receive the grace and work together to make a world worthy of the people of God.

Let It Go (Sirach)

Celebration

Not all of Sirach's teaching will hold up to 21st century standards, especially when it comes to questions of the role of woman in family and society, but that doesn't undermine the perennial wisdom that can be mined from his writings.

Today's teaching about anger and forgiveness is good for the playground, an Alcoholics Anonymous meeting, or a session of restorative justice. The first thing to notice is that Sirach focuses not on the wrongdoer and his or her criminality but on the one who is offended. Sirach tells the angry victim that she must make a choice. She was injured once. Now, if she holds to that anger, the injury will become a major factor defining her life. She will end up hugging anger and wrath and having no room in her arms for anything more valuable and life-giving.

Ben Sira warns the person bent on vengeance that each of us participates in creating the world conditions in which we will live. One cannot both nourish anger and look for healing and forgiveness from God. Ben Sira is saying, "Face it, you can only receive what you are willing to give. So, be careful!"

Toward the end of the reading, Ben Sira offers a somber and solid technique for discerning what is important. "Remember your last days...remember death and decay." A day is coming when all you can do is look back and ask yourself, "Did I make it worthwhile?" Thinking of that day, Ben Sira says "set enmity aside" because you are building the reality you will face in your own final days. As today's Gospel parable will point out, the mercy sought by a pitiless person is only a scam.

"Lord, give me the grace to be forgiving."
